SPEED CARNIVAL COMES TO A CLOSE.

Closing Day Devoted to Speed Trials, a Match Race and a Ten Mile Handicap.

(By James B. E. Bush, of the Hearst Syndicate.)

Rain caused the postponement of the races of the third and last day of the speed carnival on the beach for an hour today. Early this morning dark clouds gathered but this did not dismay the crowd that gathered.

Lured on by the prospects of seeing more records shattered by Barney Oldfield, rain was not a strong enough factor to spoil the crowd, in fact, it is doubtful if a tornado could have kept the throngs away. The Chalmers was used for a cyclone relief by those fortunate enough to have the privilege of using it for a shield.

The first race run was a match between Murray Aultman's Hudson 30, and Pete Hart, with Allen's Buick. The Buick came across the line first doing the ten miles in twelve minutes and fifty-eight seconds, and it was rather a walk-a-way as Aultman seemed to have trouble and came in the finish at a small pace.

Then the rain caused trouble with the timing device and some time was consumed in locating the trouble Barney Oldfield was scheduled to try for a new mile record.

George Robertson claimed this morning that he had the fastest ice wagon in the world and no one disputed him. On account of overhauling, Hoge yesterday carried one hundred pounds of distilled ice, and did the same today.

The next event started was the ten mile handicap with five entries. Aultman with the Hudson started five minutes and ten seconds ahead of scratch. Davis with Chalmers "30" two minutes and thirty seconds. Ben Bond with Stearns had one minute and five seconds, Barney Oldfield with the Knox had thirty seconds and Ben Kerscher with the Darrocq was scratch.

In a brilliant finish Kerscher won by beating Oldfield by a few feet, the Knox coming second, Bond with the Stearns was third, Davis with the Chalmers "30" was fourth and the Hudson was fifth. The winner's actual running time was eleven minutes and twenty-one seconds, remarkably fast time.

George Robertson with the Christie car then went up to the post for a trial of the mile record. He came down but his gasoline was shut off and no time was taken on the first trial so he did not spring the trap at the finish.

Ben Kerscher with the 100 horse power Darrocq then made a trial for a mile and made it in thirty-seven and twenty-four hundredths seconds.

Barney Oldfield then went up to take a try to break the world's record for a mile. When he came down he seemed to be going at an awful pace, but his time was announced as twenty-seven and eighty hundredths seconds, eleven twentieths of a second slower than the record held by him, made last week.

George Robertson with the Christie then came sporting down the stretch shooting fire ,but he commenced missing at the post and the trial was useless.

Barney Oldfield next made another attempt to lower the world's record for a mile but was unsuccessful, making the mile in twenty nine and fifty-seven hundredths seconds ,somewhat slower than his first trial. David L. Bruce-Brown, the millionaire sportsman and racing driver rode with Oldfield in place of Kercher. Some disappointment was apparent with the spectators, as all were eager to see the peerless dare-devil lower his own record made last week.

Walter Christie then took his car while "Sonny" George Robertson stood by the stand and smiled. Christie made the statement that he was tired of George's "monkey" business, and was going to take the car and see what he could do with it. George received perfectly willing and made no complaint. Christie made the mile in thirty-three and fifteen hundredths seconds, about three seconds slower than the time made yesterday by Robertson. It looked like Christie was losing some of his cargo of ice as he went down the beach.

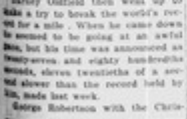

It was then announced that another ten mile handicap would be run. Aultman's Hudson started first with five minutes and ten seconds from scratch. Davis with the Chalmers "30" had three minutes and thirty seconds, the Stearns piloted by Bob Bond had one minute, Barney Oldfield with the Knox had thirty seconds over then Kercher with the Darrocq, who started at scratch.

Murray Aultman with the Hudson made a marvelous run and was with room to spare. Barney Oldfield passed over the wire second and Ben Kercher with the Darrocq made a close third, losing out with the Chalmers "30" who was fourth. Bob Bond with the Stearns finished last. The time was twelve minutes, forty-five and ninety-eight hundredths seconds. The scratch car's time was seven minutes and twenty-eight seconds.

It was announced that the race of three hundred miles for the W. B. (Continued on 5th page.)

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE TIDES?

SOME INFORMATION REGARDING TIDES THAT WILL BE OF INTEREST TO MANY.

For the past ten years, especially, I have been more than surprised at the absolute ignorance of very intelligence people as to tides.

Within the past month I have been asked why the tides changes every day—they thought it was the same hour and could not understand why it changed.

Another very intelligent person could not be convinced but what it was caused by the wind.

Recently a friend had a party motoring on the beach and one of the party asked him who attended to rolling the beach so smoothly every day.

My friend after being convinced that the party was in earnest as to the inquiry and was not trying to "josa him," remarked that the good Men above attended to it and explained the action of the tides on the sands.

"Persons living along the seashore are familiar with a semi-daily rising and falling of the waters, which, although generally amounting to only a few feet, often suffices to cover and bare by turns wide stretches of seashore. Without tide tables or any knowledge of the moon's position, the approximate time of the tides can be foretold from its observed time of occurrence on a previous day, by allowing fifty minutes for its daily retraction.

Toward and after Cæsar's time the Romans were well acquainted with ocean tides and the writings of Cæsar, Pytheas, Pliney the Elder, Chrysostom, and others clearly show. By referring the tides to the attraction of the moon and sun, Newton took the first important step in their explanation. Since that time import ant investigations of the laws of the tides have been made by Laplace, Airy, Kelvin, and S. H. Darwin.

The tide is the periodic rising and falling of oceanic and other large bodies of water, due mainly to the attraction of the moon and sun on the earth rotates upon its axis. Remarkable stages of the water level at a given place, whether due to earthquakes, gales or other causes, which probably have a definite law of recurrence, although popularly known as "tidal waves" cannot be regarded as belonging to tidal phenomena. The rising and falling is accompanied by, and depends upon, horizontal movements of the water called tidal currents, of tidal streams, or the flow and ebb. Their periodic character distinguishes them from ordinary ocean currents. The tide rises until it reaches a maximum height called high water, and then falls until it reaches a minimum height called low water. The difference in height between a high and low water is called a range of tides. To most part two high waters and two low waters occur each lunar day. The average length of a lunar day is 24 hours, 50 minutes, 20 seconds. The interval of time between the transit of the moon across the meridian and the occurrence of high or low water is called a luna-tidal interval. The average value of the high water luna-tide interval at any seaport, is sometimes called the correcting establishment to distinguish it from the high water luna tidal interval on the days of new and full moon which is known as the establishment, or the vulgar establishment of the port.

At the time of new and full moon the tidal forces of the moon and sun act in the same direction, whereas, in the first and last quarter they oppose each other. When they unite their forces we have spring tides, characterized by large ranges of the tide. When they oppose, neap tides, having small ranges. The spring and neap tides usually occur soon after the corresponding phases of the moon. The interval is called the retard or age of the tide, or age of the phase inequality, and is usually less than 60 hours. The luna tidal interval have their mean values at the times of new and full moon tides; the tides occur a fraction of an hour earlier between spring and neap tides, and later between neap and spring. Other things being equal, the range of tide is greater than usual by one-sixth part when the moon is near perigrtee and about as much less when near apogee.

An interval or decrease of about one-tenth part of the range occurs when the moon is near the equator or near the point of extreme declination, respectively.

Diurnal inequalities among the four tides of a day are due to the presence of a diurnal wave, or partial tide whose period is approximately 24 hours. The cause of this wave lies in the fact that the moon is north or south of the equator, its tidal forces are somewhat different, both in magnitude and in direction when two times half a lunar day apart are compared."

FLORIDA THE STATE, AND THIS THE PLACE FOR A HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stephan, of Colorado, who have been occupying the Hadfield residence on South Ridgewood avenue during the winter, leave for home Friday. Mr. Stephen has stored his launch at the McDonald boat yard, and will return to Daytona next winter.

Although he has spent winters in Italy, California Cuba and other winter resorts, he says Florida has the finest climate and finest boating. He will, in all probability purchase a winter home when he returns next fall.

PICK POCKET OPERATES AT THE RAILWAY DEPOT.

DAYTONA VISITOR LOST POCKET BOOK IN CRUSH AT TICKET GATE ON WEDNESDAY.

Wednesday morning, as the passengers for the north bound train due here at 9:15, were crowding through the ticket gate, a pick pocket relieved C. C. McCoy, of LaPorte City, Iowa, of his pocket book, containing $35.00 in money and a check for $37.50, carried in his hip pocket and buttoned in.

Mr. McCoy was obliged to defer his departure until this afternoon in order to arrange for funds for his trip North, as the pocket book contained all the ready money he had with him.

His trunk check was also in the pocket book and he was fearful that the trunk might be taken out at Jacksonville, but was assured that it was perfectly safe as it was checked through.

Mr. McCoy had taken his railway ticket from the pocket book just previous to stepping into the crowd waiting to pass through the gate and had replaced it in his pocket and buttoned the flap over it. Immediately after passing the gate he felt for the pocket book, intending to put back his ticket, but it was missing.

Mr. McCoy immediately gave the news of his loss to those around him, but the man he suspected had disappeared.

One of the Pullman car conductors telegraphed later in the day that a pocket book containing only a trunk check had been left in his car. He had evidently boarded the train and, after removing the money, discarded the purse.

Mr. McCoy is a brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hinsky and has been stopping at The Plaza, in company with his wife and infant daughter, who will remain here for some time longer. He has been in Daytona in previous seasons and has many friends here. Fortunately he had retained only cash enough for incidental expenses on his trip North, or his loss might have been much heavier.

Thefts of this character are likely to occur at this season, when the people are crowded about the depot waiting to take the trains.

There is always plenty of time for passing the ticket gate, however, and no need, whatever, for the senseless crowding which usually occurs upon the arrival of a train. See that your money and valuables are secure and avoid adding to the crush at the gate which not only makes it more difficult for the gateman but gives the thieves a chance to operate.

CAUSE OF ECZEMA EXPLAINED.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c), on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription at the Atwood Pharmacy.

MOUNT AETNA AGAIN IN STATE OF ERUPTION.

NAPLES, March 24.—Lava from Mount Aetna is erupting again, threatening the towns of Bordo, Bel Passo, Nunloe and Rinazzi. The inhabitants are fleeing.

The eruption is hourly becoming worse. Smoke and ashes hurled from the crater are falling on an area miles in width. Ashes now cover all vegetation. There are a dozen cracks in the mountain all gushing lava. The rumblings in the earth are tremendous and frequent. No casualities have so far been reported.

WILLIAM ROLAND ROBERTS DIED WEDNESDAY MORNING.

William Roberts died at one o'clock Wednesday morning, March 23, 1910, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. W. O'Brien, on West Orange avenue.

Mr. Roberts suffered from cerebral hemorrhage, Jan 17, which resulted in the third stroke of paralysis, and his former robust constitution gradually succumbed to the ravages of the disease.

Mr Roberts was born Sept. 21, 1828, in Dublin, Ireland, and grew to manhood in Liverpool, England, when he emigrated to America and settled at Macon, Ga. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in the Confederate army and served gallantly through the war.

In 1857 he was married to Miss Mary Rowell, and is survived by his three daughters, Mrs. Julia O'Brien, Mrs. Louisa Lourvey, of Daytona, and Mrs. C. J. Schoonmaker, of Cuzco.

The funeral services were held at the home, conducted by Rev. H. H. Mallinson at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The interment took place at Pinewood Cemetery. The pallbearers were J. L. Lynch, John W. Williams, W. H. Edmondson, Capt. S. Bennett, Geo. H. Gardiner and J. L. Wallace.

Mr Roberts was born Sept. 21, 1828, in Dublin, Ireland, and grew to manhood in Liverpool, England, when he emigrated to America and settled at Macon, Ga. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in the Confederate army and served gallantly through the war.

In 1857 he was married to Miss Mary Rowell, and is survived by his three daughters, Mrs. Julia O'Brien. Mrs. Louisa Lourcey, of Daytona, and Mrs. C. J. Schoonmaker, of Cocoa.

The funeral services were held at the home, conducted by Rev. H. H. Mallinson at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The interment took place at Pinewood Cemetery. The pallbearers were J. L. Lynch, John W. Williams, W. H. Edmondson, Capt. S. Bennett, Geo. H. Gardiner and J. L. Wallace.

AUTOMOBILE FOR HIRE 4-Cylinder Stevens-Duryea Car. By the Hour, Day or Trip. S. W. O'BRIEN Phone 114

By L. C. DEMAREE.

One of Daytona's crowning glories is her incomparable beach. No one who ever set foot upon its smooth, packed sands; no one who ever pedaled a bicycle over its expanse; no one who ever drove a prancing pair of horses and listened to the popping of their steel shoes upon its asphaltum-like face; no one who ever steered a high-power automobile down the broad stretch of wave-washed and surf-packed sand but realized that it is a world-beater, a world-wonder. Go stand upon this wide speedway and see the happy souls flit by in joyous mood, and answer whether this is not one of the seven modern wonders.

The Placid, Pellucid Halifax River.

Where think you is water with more picturesque surroundings? Nearly a mile wide, fringed with tropical vegetation, artistic cottages with roomy verandas looking out upon her bosom, gamey food fishes in countless numbers beckoning, as it were, to those with rod and reel; her bosom flecked with duck and coot and snowy-winged sea birds, which sit about as if for the sport of bobbing upon the waves; watch that lubberly old white headed pelican pouch a fat mullet, and that fish hawk struggling upward with his floundering load he snatched from the water.

See the beautiful launches, spick and span, their hampers and lockers bulging with refreshments both solid and liquid ready for a cruise upon the beautiful surface. Take out your field glass and sweep the river from Ormond bridge to Ponce Park light house, then say whether the Halifax isn't a thing of beauty and a joy forever, and one of the modern wonders.

The Enchantingly Picturesque Ridgewood.

Ridgewood avenue is upon the crest of a broad ridge, straight as the crow flies and the wide-spreading branches of the heavy-trunked live oaks extend their giant arms across the magnificent vista, forming an arch, and from these extended arms great festoons of Spanish moss sway as the trade winds from the tropic seas fan them. Looking straight ahead down this white shell street one has the impression of a fairy path with elfish draperies, but as you move along and cast an eye first to the right and then to the left you see distinguished cottage homes in the most delightful settings.

See the glistening leaf of the grand magnolia which nature has varnished as no artists' brush ever could; and the cabbage palms with their burdens of showy fruit and swaying palms; see the lovely holly with its exquisite berry; see the climbing vines run riot in the trees; see the cryptogamous forms which gain a foothold on the great oaks and stately palms, and surely you will join in the chorus and say that this is a world wonder for beauty.

Surpassing Beauty of Our Cottage Homes.

No one of Daytona's attractions, perhaps, comes into more nearly universal attention and praise than does the artistic cottages. The owners of these charming villas hail from every corner of the country and they bring their own architectural plans and build upon them, and, as the architecture of one section of the country differs from the architecture of another, so do our homes differ in outward appearance and structural beauty from one another. There are no monotonous rows of strikingly similar buildings but the eye, as it sweeps by, is treated to a kaleidoscopic change which keeps the mind wondering, "What next?"

It is not only the exterior of many of these homes which rivets attention; within they are models of convenience, and the finishing and furnishing give evidence of the elegance and cultivation of those who worked it all out. Indeed, it is the interior arrangement and artistic furnishing and shading, more than the exterior appearance that gives a surpassing charm to Daytona homes. This feature justly merits prominence as another wonder.

Streets and Pavements the Most and Best.

Why the Architect of the Universe chose to give Daytona the most admirable, the most picturesque natural setting of all the cities of the South is not revealed, but that such is a fact must be apparent to the most superficial observer. With such lavish wealth of natural beauty, it became an easy thing for the hand of man to give the finishing touches which have wrought out the colors and outlines of the big picture.

Man did all this in the laying out of the streets with their wide margins of parkage. The entire city becomes a great park, with driveways intersecting, miles upon miles of driveways so good as to attract motorists from all over the continent.

And as for the pavements, pavements that look and act like granite, —where else between the eastern and western seas are so many miles in proportion to inhabitants? The pavement question stands with the street as one of the chief drawing cards. Till some unheard of place reports more and better, Daytona throws down the gauntlet to the world.

Squirrels, Flowers, Birds and Fruit.

Whatever one's shortcomings and however indifferent or even callous one may be to many things, the mere mention of "flowers and squirrels, birds and fruits" will send a thrill that is reflected in distended pupils and pricked ears.

For every visitor with a spare goober there is a bunny ready to come and accept your gift. He will sit bolt upright and knaw into the meat, casting furtive, saucy glances at you meanwhile.

Flowers. Usually fresh and blooming the year 'round You are reminded of Goldsmith's couplet where

Smiling spring its earliest visit paid
And summer's lingering blossoms are delayed.

In one yard roses of varigated hues predominate; another household has a penchant for the poincettia and the premises are aflame; another is hidden in a jungle of tall cane. Variety is the spice of life and here is where you find it.

The birds fit in, and with their joyous notes help to give fullness and symmetry to the picture.

As for fruits, choice citrus fruits, Daytona yields the palm to none for quality and quantity per acre. There are scores of citrus groves in proximity to the city, branches bending to the earth with their burdens of luscious golden globes, which for beauty, proficiency and all desirable qualities would truly astonish you.

The Fastest Autos and The Finest Out.

The seventh world wonder, do you ask? Come, whether from Missouri or from Maine, from Kalamazoo or Timbuckto, and you will be "shown." Here is where the world's record for speed is broken with every recurring season. Autos, the biggest, the fastest, and the finest are on daily parade and the big show is as free as the pure artesian water from the thousands of flowing wells. It is a continuous show with constantly shifting scenes.

Everything goes, from a 2-horse power, up to a 200-horse power, and all degrees of speed from amble to a two-mile-a-minute clip. You will probably catch the spirit, when you do the roads and the beach are yours. The Florida sunshine is free, the balmy ocean breezes are free, the birds and squirrels and flowers are free, the sparkling fountain water is free and you will have to go down in to your wallet only for cots for auto and bed and board.

This is no fanciful picture; it's all here. It is drawing other thousands and holding them enthralled, it will charm and hold you. Come and see.

Seabreeze and Daytona Beach, two enterprising and progressive towns on the Halifax Peninsula, are geographically one although incorporated as separate municipalities. The towns parallel the peninsula north and south for a distance of from three and one-half to four miles, and extend east and west from the surging seas of the Atlantic Ocean to the Halifax River, the beautiful tide-water stream that sets them apart from Daytona with which they have close communication by means of three bridges, as well as a half-hour ferry service.

Seabreeze and Daytona Beach are essentially summer and winter resorts and are making hundreds of new friends every year among those who desire to escape the discomforting extremes of heat and cold, and their hotels and boarding houses are now receiving splendid patronage from the most discriminating class of tourists.

The mean average temperature, 80 degrees in the summer and 70 degrees in the winter, with an occasional extra rise or drop of a few days' duration, marks this as one of the most healthful locations in any section of the country, north, east, south or west.

The ocean itself, with its marvelous beach, hard as macadam and smooth as a floor, is the greatest attraction, although earth and air and sky seem to have entered into a combination to enhance its every charm. The beach is the famous automobile race course where every world's straightaway record has been made, and all these records it continues to hold without rivalry.

The sand of this famous speedway is composed largely of the shells of the coquina clam, which are about one-half inch long and very thin. For ages Nature has been rolling them up, washing them back into the surf and pulverizing them. Examined under the microscope each particle is round, unfit for mortar, builders say, because its smoothness prevents its holding together, yet, strange to contemplate, the very moment a wave leaves the wet, apparently soft beach, these round particles settle down into a cement almost as hard as asphalt, beyond the comprehension of one who has not seen it. Repairs are unnecessary, as twice each 24 hours it is entirely rebuilt by the tides. The beach has a width of 300 to 500 feet, and can be used from two hours after until two hours before high tide, thus giving an average of seven or eight hours for automobiling some part of each day.

Seabreeze and Daytona Beach each have a permanent population of approximately 1500. Sanitary ordinances are strictly enforced, streets and sidewalks are well kept, and new streets are being opened as fast as the increasing population demands. Besides hotels and boarding houses there is ample cottage accommodation for all winter visitors.

Seabreeze contains a handsome opera house and a Congregational Church; at Daytona Beach is a M. E. Church. An excellent high school is situated near the division line between the two towns. Both towns have enterprising business establishments, as is evidenced by the advertisements on the left and right.

All the attractiveness of Seabreeze applies to Daytona Beach, the two towns being so similarly situated. The development of Daytona Beach has been fully as phenomenal as its sister on the north, and each year there is a substantial growth. The great sand dunes have been leveled and handsome homes have been built for both winter and all-year-round occupancy. Flowering shrubs have been planted, which are covered with a wealth of bloom both summer and winter.

Work of rebuilding the Clarendon hotel is now in progress. This magnificent fire-proof structure, which is to contain 250 rooms, when completed will be the peer of any hotel in Florida. The site is immediately north of the clubhouse of the Florida East Coast Automobile Association.

The Ocean Pier is a great attraction to fishermen and it is found summer and winter with enthusiastic disciples of Izaak Walton, who find it nothing unusual to land fish weighing several hundred pounds.

PROGRESSIVE NEW SMYRNA

STATE BANK OF NEW SMYRNA
[illegible] T. HAMMOND, President
[illegible] L. BRANNING, Cashier
Transacts a General Banking Business
4 Per Cent. Interest on Time Deposits

NEW SMYRNA is situated fifteen miles south of Daytona and is an ideal spot reached from Daytona by a hard surface road winding through one of the most picturesque parts of Florida.

With its ancient ruins dating back to a time when the history of man runneth not, interlaced with wires of the modern telegraph and telephone, its miles of shell streets as hard and smooth as a floor and over-arched by hoary forest giants that grew in stately grandeur during the lapse of bygone centuries, New Smyrna is truly a place of romance and rest.

All nature here is very inviting to the tourist and pleasure-seeker. Here too is to be found the best fishing and hunting in the State of Florida.

The people are thrifty, the business men enterprising, and all unite in extending the welcome hand of hospitality to strangers. There are five church edifices for white people and an equal number for the colored population; the town has an excellent high school, a splendid public library, and up-to-date business houses.

There are any number of pretty homes for the permanent population, which numbers close to 2,000, and some very fine winter residences. There are good hotels and boarding houses where you can find accommodations to meet your requirements.

Adjoining New Smyrna is as fine a section of vegetable land as can be found anywhere. This land has been divided into small farms which can be bought at reasonable prices. Some of the finest celery grown in the State is raised on this land. All other vegetables grow in abundance, and here, too, is the home of the famous Indian River oranges.

New Smyrna has no bonded indebtedness and the tax levy is low.

A point that no tourist should fail to visit is the ruins of the Old Spanish Mission which stand somber and alone about one and a quarter miles southwest of New Smyrna. A good road leads to the place and the trip can be easily made by an automobile. Silent, in the great pine flats by the margin of the forest, is this place of pilgrimage for the pious; this rendezvous for the picnicker. The ruins are extensive, and while there is no authentic history of their origin, it is presumed that the Mission was built by the Franciscans in the days when the once powerful Kingdom of Spain first planted its flag upon what is now American soil. It was built of coquina, the roof being of the same material, cut into thin slabs and covered with cement plaster. Extensive gardens surrounded it, which were enclosed by a stone wall, portions of which still remain. Visitors usually come in parties merry and curious but the spell of the place soon falls upon them and they separate to sit alone, silent and meditative, under the arches or beside the ancient well.

CORONADO

Is situated on the peninsula opposite New Smyrna and is connected by a good road and bridge over the deep current of Indian River. Here you can put aside your conventional garb, breathe in large and deep the salty tonic of the sea and enjoy yourself to your heart's content with rod and reel in row or sail boat or in the ocean surf a short half-mile away. The great varieties of fish inhabiting the river and lagoon pass through the channel from the sea beneath the bridge. From verandas, upper balconies and windows you behold the magnificent river, the distant lagoons and islands, the forest-covered peninsula and the vast reaches of the Atlantic Ocean.

HAWKS PARK

A pretty village located along the ridge above the Indian River two and one-half miles south of New Smyrna and connected with fine shell roads. There is the appearance of newness, comfort and seclusion about the place which stamps it as the abode of people who come here to enjoy the blessings of outdoor life away from places where crowds are apt to gather.

ORMOND is five miles north of Daytona, located on the western bank of the Halifax River. The location of the town permits of good drainage and perfect sanitation; the elevation is superb and ideal for winter homes. A wide bridge connects Ormond with Ormond Beach.

Many fine residences are maintained on either side of the river, most of them embellished with subtropical flora and shrubbery, besides thrifty orange and other citrus fruit trees.

The town is very cosmopolitan, has an excellent graded school, several churches, a fine public library, up-to-date places of business and comfortable and convenient hotels and boarding houses.

Ormond has many of the Florida attractions—fine fruit, good fishing, excellent automobiling, safe boating, salubrious climate and pleasant walks and drives.

At Ormond Beach is located the large Hotel Ormond, and its lesser sister, Bretton Inn. The former occupies a position overlooking the Halifax River, while the latter has as its outlook the magnificent beach and the broad Atlantic.

The walks in all directions are particularly attractive, and the arbors, shady and inviting spots and romantic nooks are crowded with rustic seats which are mute invitations to enter into the enjoyment thereof.

Besides the broad, smooth ocean beach there are many drives for carriage or automobile—long drives and short drives; drives through groves of golden oranges; drives through dense tropical forests to Spanish ruins; drives to the ancient Causeway built by the slaves of planters of long ago, and drives to the plantations of hospitable settlers, whose places are replete with the interest of Southern fruits and flowers.

One of these interesting plantations is Number Nine, located on the peninsula, five miles north of the Hotel Ormond. Here you see a fine orange grove, together with great varieties of other sub-tropical fruits and flowers.

Five miles farther on you come to Moundgrove, one of the finest orange groves in this section of Florida. Moundgrove is on the headwaters of the Halifax River and is amid pretty surroundings. The place is reached by a good road [passing Number Nine] and is a drive all tourists may enjoy.

PICTURESQUE PORT ORANGE

PORT ORANGE is a pretty little village situated five miles south of Daytona on the Daytona-New Smyrna hard-surface road, the scenic highway of the East Coast. The town is located on the Halifax River, over which spans a bridge from the town to the peninsula opposite.

The town is well laid out and has many pretty homes owned and occupied by residents and winter tourists. It has several churches, one of the best graded schools in Volusia county, two general stores, a real estate agency and two or three hotels.

A large number of tourists and winter residents make Port Orange winter headquarters, one of the several attractions being the excellent fishing. Port Orange is in the orange belt and a number of very fine citrus groves are nearby, where oranges, tangerines and grape-fruit hang in profusion. Some of the best trucking land in the State is to be found thereabout and excellent crops are raised.

West of Port Orange a short distance are the remains of the old Dunlawton sugar mill, a spot that is visited every year by hundreds of tourists. At one time all the country west of Port Orange, surrounding the old mill, was a vast sugar-cane and indigo plantation. The mill was operated extensively in those days but has been in disuse for thirty or forty years.

A pretty automobile or carriage drive from Daytona is via the ocean beach to the approach of the Port Orange bridge, across the bridge and then passing through Port Orange to the ruins of the celebrated old sugar mill, returning to Daytona by the road on the mainland. This drive affords a very pleasing variety of scenery.

DeLAND, the county seat of Volusia County, is situated 23 miles southwest of Daytona and is reached from the latter city by an excellent hard-surface road recently constructed.

At DeLand is located the John B. Stetson University, one of the leading educational institutions of the South. Because of the interest in matters educational DeLand is known as "The Athens of Florida."

Stetson University has a faculty of 50 professors and instructors. There are over $400,000 in buildings and equipment; nearly $300,000 endowment; a Carnegie Library alone representing an investment in building, endowment and books, of more than $120,000. The library is the United States Government depository for the State of Florida, and contains over 15,000 volumes. Science Hall, one of the newest of 16 buildings, with its furnishings, represents an outlay of $60,000. Elizabeth Hall is one of the most beautiful college buildings in the South.

The city has a population of about 3,500, with a thickly settled country adjacent. DeLand proper is five miles east of the St. Johns River, on the high, rolling pine land of the great "Orange Ridge" of Florida.

The predominating products are oranges and grapefruit, the estimated crop from this vicinity being over 300,000 boxes this year. Grapes, peaches, pears, Japan persimmons, plums, pecans, guavas, strawberries and other fruits are grown in plenty.

In the way of public improvements are many miles of fine shell roads, an excellent high school, electric lights, a system of waterworks that is owned and operated by the city, supplying the purest water at little cost.

Nine houses of worship testify that DeLand is a church-going community. Baptists, Episcopalians, Methodists (Northern and Southern), Presbyterians, Christians and Catholics, besides colored Baptists and Methodists, are represented.

The graded school offers a ten years' course, and the building which it occupies is newly furnished throughout, and is one of the most commodious and best equipped public schools in the State.

The trip from Daytona to DeLand is made by automobile in a little over an hour, and there are many pretty drives in the vicinity of the county site. A good road leads to DeLeon Springs, five miles, a historic spot, where 60,000 gallons of water bubble from the earth every minute.

From DeLand automobiles go south to Osteen, 18 miles, on shell and marl roads; the St. Johns is crossed by ferry near Osteen and cars can then continue to Sanford and Orlando by hard road. There is a shell road from DeLand to Orange City, five miles, and a good road from DeLand to Lake Helen, a like distance.

Camp Cassadaga, a spiritualistic camp-ground is situated near Lake Helen and at this place several hundred people make winter headquarters. A large lumber mill and the largest brick plant in the South are located at Lake Helen.

ORANGE CITY

The principal attraction around Orange City is the many handsome golden orange groves. The town is supplied with water said to be the purest in the world, another attraction to visitors. It is at Orange City that passengers over the Florida East Coast Ry. transfer to carriages and drive to Deland. The town is surrounded by land peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of citrus fruits.

DELAND, THE ATHENS OF FLORIDA

DELAND, the county seat of Volusia County, is situated 23 miles southwest of Daytona and is reached from the latter city by an excellent hard-surface road recently constructed.

At DeLand is located the John B. Stetson University, one of the leading educational institutions of the South. Because of the interest in matters educational DeLand is known as "The Athens of Florida."

Stetson University has a faculty of 50 professors and instructors. There are over $400,000 in buildings and equipment; nearly $300,000 endowment; a Carnegie Library alone representing an investment in building, endowment and books, of more than $120,000. The library is the United States Government depository for the State of Florida, and contains over 15,000 volumes. Science Hall, one of the newest of 16 buildings, with its furnishings, represents an outlay of $60,000. Elizabeth Hall is one of the most beautiful college buildings in the South.

The city has a population of about 3,500, with a thickly settled country adjacent. DeLand proper is five miles east of the St. Johns River, on the high, rolling pine land of the great "Orange Ridge" of Florida.

The predominating products are oranges and grapefruit, the estimated crop from this vicinity being over 300,000 boxes this year. Grapes, peaches, pears, Japan persimmons, plums, pecans, guavas, strawberries and other fruits are grown in plenty.

In the way of public improvements are many miles of fine shell roads, an excellent high school, electric lights, a system of waterworks that is owned and operated by the city, supplying the purest water at little cost.

Nine houses of worship testify that DeLand is a church-going community. Baptists, Episcopalians, Methodists (Northern and Southern), Presbyterians, Christians and Catholics, besides colored Baptists and Methodists, are represented.

The graded school offers a ten years' course, and the building which it occupies is newly furnished throughout, and is one of the most commodious and best equipped public schools in the State.

The trip from Daytona to DeLand is made by automobile in a little over an hour, and there are many pretty drives in the vicinity of the county site. A good road leads to DeLeon Springs, five miles, a historic spot, where 60,000 gallons of water bubble from the earth every minute.

From DeLand automobiles go south to Osteen, 18 miles, on shell and marl roads; the St. Johns is crossed by ferry near Osteen and cars can then continue to Sanford and Orlando by hard road. There is a shell road from DeLand to Orange City, five miles, and a good road from DeLand to Lake Helen, a like distance.

ORANGE CITY

The principal attraction around Orange City is the many handsome golden orange groves. The town is supplied with water said to be the purest in the world, another attraction to visitors. It is at Orange City that passengers over the Florida East Coast Ry. transfer to carriages and drive to Deland. The town is surrounded by land peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of citrus fruits.

JOE AND SAM.

I want you to read this fine, true story of Joe and Sam Leonard, brothers, aged sixteen and fourteen respectively. I watch the newspapers pretty closely, and this is one of the best human interest items I have seen.

Of the two brothers Sam is blind. Flaxen haired, footsore, unshorned, one leading the other, they were found by a Chicago policeman, who took them to a station, where they were fed.

They had come from New Orleans, riding in box cars. This was Joe's story:

"I don't care so much about myself, but I want to see little Sam go ahead. I came to Chicago to work. I will do anything, from peeling potatoes to anything [illegible], for Sam's sake. I will get ahead too."

Joe's eyes flashed when he uttered the last sentence.

As he told of the death of their father and mother in New Orleans and of their struggles Sam's arm stole around Joe's neck. Joe sold papers, but got sick, and they had only $1 left. With this sum they left for "the big city in the north," of which they had heard so much.

But Joe can tell the story better than I can:

"I helped Sammy on a freight train. I got on, and we rode to Memphis. I was so afraid something would happen to Sammy I could hardly sleep.

"One night it got cold, and I put my coat over Sam to keep him warm. A tramp was in the box car, and I was

Face of the Typical New Yorker.

London is a friendless city enough heaven knows, to those who are not able to conquer, but she seems to me mild, benignant even, in comparison with New York. The face of the Londoner is very often overcast with the thought of how to get a living in the keen competition of the people in that mighty capital, but the London face is tranquillity embodied in comparison with the face of the typical New Yorker. Keen, hatchet shaped, anxious, absorbed—such is the face you see everywhere around you. And this keenness of face is accompanied by a terrible spirit of self absorption. You seldom see people talk much while they are traveling in the elevated railway or in the subway, as they call the underground train there.—T. P. O'Connor in London M. A. P.

Napoleon's Temper.

A story is told of a sudden rage into which Napoleon I. fell one day as he was at dinner. He had scarcely partaken of a mouthful when apparently some inopportune thought or recollection stung his brain to madness, and, receding from the table without rising from his chair—his small stature permitted that—he uplifted his foot—dash went the table, crash went the dinner, and the emperor sprang up, intending to pace the room. Quick as a flash his waiter scratched a few magic symbols on a bit of paper, and the emperor's check had grown more than double. Napoleon appreciated the delicacy of his attendant and said, "Thank you, my dear Dunand," with one of his inimitable smiles. The hurricane had blown over.

Decimals and Duodecimals.

Herbert Spencer offered a characteristically original system of reckoning. He clung to the duodecimal system, mainly because twelve can be divided by three and four as ten cannot. But he suggested that all the advantages of both systems might be combined by making twelve the basis of calculation, inventing two new digits to take the places of ten and eleven and making twelve times twelve the hundred. Spencer scornfully remarked that the decimal system rests solely on the fact that man has ten fingers and ten toes. If he had had twelve "there never would have been any difficulty."

Anxious Traveling.

A traveler in Russia noticed that the train he entered was all decorated with flags and banners, and at every station it passed stood a company of soldiers and a band playing the national anthem. The traveler asked a brakeman the reason of all this ceremony. The brakeman, lowering his voice, replied:

"I don't mind telling you, sir—but in the strictest confidence, be it understood—that a carriage in this train has been engaged for his majesty. But his majesty, as a matter of fact, won't set off till this evening. Thus the plot hatched against him may take effect on this train, you see, and our gracious sovereign will be saved."

The brakeman touched his cap and passed on, and the traveler, suddenly grown pale and nervous, stared from the window anxiously.

WATCHING HOLES.

Some men were at work repairing a broken conduit under the street pavement.

They dug a good sized hole, and while two of them were at work below another directed the work from above.

There was a pile of dirt about the

What a Change!

"He used to kiss me every time we passed through a tunnel before our marriage," said the little woman, with sad reflections.

"And does he do so now?" asked the bosom friend.

"No; he takes a drink."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Declined the Job.

A writer of cheap fiction relates a trick played on him by a collaborator in the days when dime novels were longer than they are now, and the compensation made it worth while for two men to write one story between them. After his partner had finished the first chapter of their initial collaboration it was handed over with the following announcement:

"There, I've just thrown the hero over a thousand foot cliff and told the reader that nothing could prevent the lad from falling to death on the rocks below. It is up to you to save the boy."

The other writer said nothing, but sat down and wrote furiously for an hour. Then he quietly handed the manuscript back. A glance at the second chapter showed the funny man that his friend had completely ignored the events in the first part of the story, introduced a new set of characters and left the hero still hanging over the cliff, waiting to be rescued by his creator.—New York Sun.

Poetry Didn't Save Them.

A New York prisoner accused of drunkenness who pleaded his case in rhyme before a magistrate got a sentence of six months on "the island," for, as the judge remarked, his "jag" was bad enough, but his poetry was worse. Over in London a "plain drunk" put forth this:

I've been drinking wine that is drawn from the wood;
No bottle rubbish, but sparkling and good.
But it got in my head, so my friends all opined
That the wine has gone back to the wood once again.

The effusion and the celebration cost him 10 shillings.—New York Tribune.

JOE AND SAM.

I want you to read this fine, true story of Joe and Sam Leonard, brothers, aged sixteen and fourteen respectively. I watch the newspapers pretty closely, and this is one of the best human interest items I have seen.

Of the two brothers Sam is blind.

Flaxen haired, footsore, sunburned, one leading the other, they were found by a Chicago policeman, who took them to a station, where they were fed.

They had come from New Orleans, riding in box cars. This was Joe's story:

"I don't care so much about myself, but I want to see little Sam go ahead. I came to Chicago to work. I will do anything, from peeling potatoes to scrubbing floors, for Sam's sake. I will get ahead too."

Joe's eyes flashed when he uttered the last sentence.

As he told of the death of their father and mother in New Orleans and of their struggles Sam's arm stole around Joe's neck. Joe sold papers, but got sick, and they had only $4 left. With this sum they left for "the big city in the north," of which they had heard so much.

But Joe can tell the story better than I can:

"I helped Sammy on a freight train. I got on, and we rode to Memphis. I was so afraid something would happen to Sammy I could hardly sleep.

"One night it got cold, and I put my coat over Sam to keep him warm. A tramp was in the box car, and I was

Face of the Typical New Yorker.

London is a friendless city enough heaven knows, to those who are not able to conquer, but she seems to me mild, benignant even, in comparison with New York. The face of the Londoner is very often overcast with the thought of how to get a living in the keen competition of the people in that mighty capital, but the London face is tranquillity embodied in comparison with the face of the typical New Yorker. Keen, hatchet shaped, anxious, absorbed—such is the face you see everywhere around you. And this keenness of face is accompanied by a terrible spirit of self absorption. You seldom see people talk much while they are traveling in the elevated railway or in the subway, as they call the underground train there.—T. P. O'Connor in London M. A. P.

Napoleon's Temper.

A story is told of a sudden rage into which Napoleon I. fell one day as he was at dinner. He had scarcely partaken of a mouthful when apparently some inopportune thought or recollection stung his brain to madness, and, receding from the table without rising from his chair—his small stature permitted that—he uplifted his foot—dash went the table, crash went the dinner, and the emperor sprang up, intending to pace the room. Quick as a flash his waiter scratched a few magic symbols on a bit of paper, and the emperor's check had grown more than double. Napoleon appreciated the delicacy of his attendant and said, "Thank you, my dear Dunand," with one of his inimitable smiles. The hurricane had blown over.

Decimals and Duodecimals.

Herbert Spencer offered a characteristically original system of reckoning. He clung to the duodecimal system, mainly because twelve can be divided by three and four as ten cannot. But he suggested that all the advantages of both systems might be combined by making twelve the basis of calculation, inventing two new digits to take the places of ten and eleven and making twelve times twelve the hundred. Spencer scornfully remarked that the decimal system rests solely on the fact that man has ten fingers and ten toes. If he had had twelve "there never would have been any difficulty."

Anxious Traveling.

A traveler in Russia noticed that the train he entered was all decorated with flags and banners, and at every station it passed stood a company of soldiers and a band playing the national anthem. The traveler asked a brakeman the reason of all this ceremony. The brakeman, lowering his voice, replied:

"I don't mind telling you, sir—but in the strictest confidence, be it understood—that a carriage in this train has been engaged for his majesty. But his majesty, as a matter of fact, won't set off till this evening. Thus the plot hatched against him may take effect on this train, you see, and our gracious sovereign will be saved."

The brakeman touched his cap and passed on, and the traveler, suddenly grown pale and nervous, stared from the window anxiously.

WATCHING HOLES.

Some men were at work repairing a broken conduit under the street pavement.

They dug a good sized hole, and while two of them were at work below another directed the work from above.

There was a pile of dirt about the

What a Change!

"He used to kiss me every time we passed through a tunnel before our marriage," said the little woman, with sad reflections.

"And does he do so now?" asked the bosom friend.

"No; he takes a drink."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Declined the Job.

A writer of cheap fiction relates a trick played on him by a collaborator in the days when dime novels were longer than they are now, and the compensation made it worth while for two men to write one story between them. After his partner had finished the first chapter of their initial collaboration it was handed over with the following announcement:

"There, I've just thrown the hero over a thousand foot cliff and told the reader that nothing could prevent the lad from falling to death on the rocks below. It is up to you to save the boy."

The other writer said nothing, but sat down and wrote furiously for an hour. Then he quietly handed the manuscript back. A glance at the second chapter showed the funny man that his friend had completely ignored the events in the first part of the story, introduced a new set of characters and left the hero still hanging over the cliff, waiting to be rescued by his creator.—New York Sun.

Poetry Didn't Save Them.

A New York prisoner accused of drunkenness who pleaded his case in rhyme before a magistrate got a sentence of six months on "the island," for, as the judge remarked, his "jag" was bad enough, but his poetry was worse. Over in London a "plain drunk" put forth this:

I've been drinking wine that is drawn from the wood;
No bottle rubbish, but sparkling and good.
But it got in my head, so my friends all explain
That the wine has gone back to the wood once again.

The effusion and the celebration cost him 10 shillings.—New York Tribune.

SPEED CARNIVAL COMES TO A CLOSE.

Corset Co., trophy valued at $1000 was called off for the meet. The incoming tide made this necessary and as the cars could not stay over another day, the cup will not be contested for. Whether or not it will be withdrawn is a matter of conjecture, as it may be offered at some other meet, or held over for the beach meet next, plans for which are already under way.

With the close of the day's program, although this was not the best day, came the close of the most successful racing meet ever held on Daytona beach. Records were smashed in profusion, and interesting stock events were run. Interest not visible here before since the memorable year of 1906, was shown, and the officials of the meet felt satisfied that the public had been cared for.

Do you realize? That the fastest time ever made by any machine was made on Daytona Beach--- That uo where else in all America has ANY ONE seen seen this automobile in action. Isn't this worth all it cost you?

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A MODERN ST FRANCIS.

Some of the newspapers take occasion to gibe at James Eads Howe and his "hobo convention."

Howe is one of the remarkable men of this generation. He is the grandson of James Eads, the great engineer who devised and built the Eads bridge at St. Louis and the Mississippi river jetties.

James Eads Howe inherited the fortune his famous grandfather won, a fortune of several millions.

He gave away every cent of it.

Though he was comparatively poor at the time of his inheritance, he refused to touch any part of the money, assigning it ever to trustees for the benefit of humanity.

That was several years ago.

Meantime he works as a common laborer, carrying his dinner bucket to and fro, associating constantly with workingmen and seeking to aid them in every way.

Once a year he calls a convention.

Some who attend are "hoboes," attracted by the free banquet which is a part of Howe's program. But many others are self respecting men out of employment.

Howe's motto is, "The manless job for the jobless man."

He is trying to induce the government to establish employment agencies in the large cities, after the manner of Germany and France; also, in as far as possible, to colonize poor families on cheap lands.

Who can deny the worthiness of such aims?

Like Tolstoy, who labored at the peasant's task in peasant garb that he might teach and guide, so James Eads Howe lives the workingman's life, does the daily task of the common laborer, that he may be in touch with those he yearns to help.

He is a man of culture, is modest, and there is about him no mark of the crank.

For years Mr. Eads has lived up to his ideals.

It may not be your way of doing things or mine, but it is Christlike. St. Francis threw his wealth on the altar of St. Peter's and took upon himself the vow of poverty. James Eads Howe has laid his fortune on the altar of humanity and lives a life of poverty that he may help his toiling brethren.

If all of us lived up to our ideals as sincerely as this man, heaven would come down to earth in a day.

A Youthful Inventor.

Samuel Colt was only fifteen years of age when he invented his famous revolver.

England's Giant King.

Edward I. was six feet two inches high, and the tips of his middle fingers extended below his knees.

The really and truly pie is more than the materials given by the recipe maker. Beyond the ingredients named there is that invisible thing which for want of a better term may be called—The spirit of the pie.

Do you remember the pies your mother used to make, or, to put it rightly, can you ever forget the pies that mother made?

Well, those pies were all good, but some were better than others. For instance—

When mother was feeling good and went to her piemaking with smiles and a song her pies were fit for angels'

SPEED CARNIVAL COMES TO A CLOSE.

Corset Co., trophy valued at $5000 was called off for the meet. The incoming tide made this necessary and as the cars could not stay over another day, the cup will not be contested for . Whether or not it will be withdrawn is a matter of conjecture, as it may be offered at some other meet, or held over for the beach meet next, plans for which are already under way.

With the close of the day's program, although this was not the best day, came the close of the most successful racing meet ever held on Daytona beach. Records were smashed in profusion, and interesting stock events were run. Interest not visible here before since the memorable year of 1906, was shown, and the officials of the meet felt satisfied that the public had been cared for.

Do you realize? That the fastest time ever made by any machine was made on Daytona Beach--- That uo where else in all America has ANY ONE seen seen this automobile in action. Isn't this worth all it cost you?

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A MODERN ST FRANCIS.

Some of the newspapers take occasion to gibe at James Eads Howe and his "hobo convention."

Howe is one of the remarkable men of this generation. He is the grandson of James Eads, the great engineer who devised and built the Eads bridge at St. Louis and the Mississippi river jetties.

James Eads Howe inherited the fortune his famous grandfather won, a fortune of several millions.

He gave away every cent of it.

Though he was comparatively poor at the time of his inheritance, he refused to touch any part of the money, assigning it over to trustees for the benefit of humanity.

That was several years ago.

Meantime he works as a common laborer, carrying his dinner bucket to and fro, associating constantly with workingmen and seeking to aid them in every way.

Once a year he calls a convention.

Some who attend are "hoboes," attracted by the free banquet which is a part of Howe's program. But many others are self respecting men out of employment.

Howe's motto is, "The manless job for the jobless man."

He is trying to induce the government to establish employment agencies in the large cities, after the manner of Germany and France; also, in so far as possible, to colonize poor families on cheap lands.

Who can deny the worthiness of such aims?

Like Tolstoy, who labored at the peasant's task in peasant garb that he might teach and guide, so James Eads Howe lives the workingman's life, does the daily task of the common laborer, that he may be in touch with those he yearns to help.

He is a man of culture, is modest, and there is about him no mark of the crank.

For years Mr. Eads has lived up to his ideals.

It may not be your way of doing things or mine, but it is Christlike. St. Francis threw his wealth on the altar of St. Peter's and took upon himself the vow of poverty. James Eads Howe has laid his fortune on the altar of humanity and lives a life of poverty that he may help his toiling brethren.

If all of us lived up to our ideals as sincerely as this man, heaven would come down to earth in a day.

A Youthful Inventor.

Samuel Colt was only fifteen years of age when he invented his famous revolver.

England's Giant King.

Edward I. was six feet two inches high, and the tips of his middle fingers extended below his knees.

Just Like Daytona

As a Resort in which to spend the winter or a part of it. Daytona is known the world over as the Prettiest Resort in Florida--and the Beauty of the City is as the Architect of the Universe left It.

ONE OF THE MANY BEAUTIFUL VIEWS IN DAYTONA

If you are sojourning in Florida and have not yet visited Daytona your trip to the State is Not Yet Complete.

Come and See---

Daytona Awaits You.

DON'T BELITTLE YOURSELF.

Few Chances Come to the Self Depreciatory Man.

"Henry," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful young nephew, "I would not advise anybody to go around continually blowing his own horn. We tire of men who do that, and we are apt to think of them that that's all they can do, blow.

"On the other hand, Henry, never belittle yourself; never be self depreciatory. Don't have a poor opinion of yourself, but if you do have such an opinion don't express it. The man who blows his own horn may seldom be taken at his own valuation, but the self depreciatory man almost invariably is.

"So never run yourself down or speak doubtfully of your own ability. If the boss is thinking of advancing you and he should say to you some day, 'Henry, we are thinking of trying you on this thing—do you think you could handle this job?' you don't want to say, 'Well, I haven't had much experience yet in that way, and I really don't know whether I could do that or not.'

"You don't want to say anything like that, for if you do he'll be likely to think it over some more and end up by trying somebody else, taking a blower maybe who can't really do the work half as well as you could, but who's got self confidence enough to say he can.

"You don't know what you can do till you try. Some men try and fail, but an astonishing number rise to occasions, developing strength or ability that others might never have thought them to possess."—New York Sun.

SPOILED HER DAY.

Why the Woman Looked Daggers at the Car Conductor.

"Oh, the brute!" exclaimed a stylishly dressed woman who was riding down town on a Tenth street car. She plainly addressed the remark to the conductor, who smiled deprecatingly, raised his hand to his cap and said, "Sure, I didn't think it was any use in the world."

All the way to Market street the aggrieved woman followed the unlucky conductor up and down the car with her eyes, "looking daggers" at him. The poor chap had unwittingly spoiled her day.

As she came into the car she saw lying near the door a woman's hair buckle. It was supposedly oriental in fashion, with a big "stone" set in it. She sat down, with her eye on the buckle; then stooped and picked it up. She had opened her bag with the intention of dropping her find within, but glanced up and saw that the other passengers were watching her. Evidently she thought it might be wiser to ask the conductor if he knew the owner. She held it, therefore, until the conductor passed her, then handed it to him, with the question, "Do you know whether anybody has lost this?" "I suppose some one has, ma'am," he answered. "Let me see it."

Then, after glancing at it a moment, "Aw, that's no good," said he and tossed the treasure [illegible] into the street.

"Oh, the brute!" exclaimed the woman. And who can blame her?—Philadelphia Times.

The Purchase of New York.

When the letter announcing the purchase for 60 guilders ($24) of the 11,000 morgens of land constituting Manhattan Island was read in the assembly of the states general on Nov. 1, 1626, it was resolved that "no action is necessary on this information." Had their high mightinesses possessed prevision how strenuous might have been the resolution passed that the newly acquired island should be kept forever under their control! Nor was the West India company, that money seeking trust which ventured this first speculation in wheat and in lands in the long line of enterprises known to Manhattan, more alive to the excellence of their investment. More than ten times the sum paid over to the Indians for about 22,000 acres, according to their estimate, has since been paid for a single square foot of New York soil. Probably there is no other sale on record where the advance in value has been so great.—Putnam's Magazine.

An Armored Nest.

In the Argentine Republic, says a writer in the Strand Magazine, where the summers are long and hot, it is customary to leave the windows open both day and night during the hottest part of the year. A bird, taking advantage of this, proceeded to build a nest in my room, fixing it firmly to one of the Venetian blinds over the window. The eggs were duly hatched and the young birds fledged. On taking down the empty nest I found it to be practically armored, the outer part being composed almost entirely of old rusty nails woven in among the hay. On counting the nails I found that no fewer than sixty-six had been used, besides some wire and pins taken from my dressing table. The bird was about the size of a robin and very tame.

Not So Bad.

"I asked my class of small boys if any could tell me the meaning of the word 'apprentice,'" said a teacher recently, "and all looked at me blankly until one lad arose.

"'Can you tell me what apprentice means?' I repeated.

"'Yes. It means practicing work.'"—Exchange.

"We are now exactly a thousand feet above the level of the sea."

"What sea?"

"The guidebook doesn't say."—Bon Vivant.

A Revolutionary Puzzle.

These old rhymes were written in the early part of the Revolutionary war—about 1776. If read as written they are a tribute to the king and his army, but if read downward on either side of the comma they indicate an unbreakable spirit of rebellion to both king and parliament. The author is unknown:

Hark, hark the trumpet sounds, the din of war's alarms
O'er seas and solid grounds, doth call us all to arms;
Who for King George doth stand, their honors soon shall shine;
Their ruin is at hand, who with the congress join.
The acts of parliament, in them I much delight;
I hate their cursed intent, who for the congress fight.
The Tories of the day, they are my daily toast;
They soon will sneak away, who independence boast;
Who nonresistance hold, they have my hand and heart,
May they for slaves be sold, who act the Whiggish part.
On Mansfield, North and Bute, may daily blessings pour;
Confusion and dispute, on congress evermore.
To North and British lord, may honors still be done,
I wish a block and cord, to General Washington.

—National Magazine.

The Dazzling Searchlight.

On a dark night no warship would be safe from torpedo attack but for the searchlight. The full moon lights up a torpedo boat so that it can be fired at when nearly a mile away. To produce the same illumination with the most powerful artificial light an electric arc of 100,000 candle power placed three-quarters of a mile high would be needed if the aid of mirrors were not available. But with this light and an ingenious arrangement of mirrors it is possible to surpass the moon. Searchlights are now made which throw light a distance of sixty-three miles, but objects can be seen only a few miles from the source of the light. The effect on the enemy is most demoralizing. When the bright beam is suddenly thrown on the eye the pupil contracts violently; when the beam is removed the eye can see nothing. If this be repeated a few times it takes all the nerve out of a man, so that only the best trained and most courageous can continue the attack.—London Answers.

A Disappointing Witness.

Deacon Stephen Potter, one of the pioneers of Utica, N. Y., was a man of great eccentricity, but high moral character. "The deacon will speak the truth and shame the devil," was often said of him.

On one occasion a friend was engaged in a lawsuit in regard to some land a few miles from Utica. He held the land at a high price. During the trial he called Deacon Potter as a witness to prove how valuable the land was. The deacon was sworn and asked if he knew the land.

"Yes," he replied, "I know every foot of it."

"What do you think it worth, Mr. Potter?" was the next question.

The old man [illegible] a moment and then said slowly, "If I had as many dollars as my yoke of oxen could draw—on a sled—on glare ice—I wouldn't give a dollar an acre for it!"—Youth's Companion.

Flag Proportions.

In the United States flag the width of a stripe is invariably half the length in inches of the flag's longest measurement. For example, in a flag ten feet long the stripes should be five inches wide. Accordingly the flag would have a width of five feet five inches, or thirteen times five inches. The field should be of navy blue bunting measuring seven stripes deep and extending two-fifths across the length of the flag. There should be forty-six stars on the field, arranged in six rows, beginning with eight, the two middle rows having eight and the last row eight and the other rows seven. The size of the star at its widest measurement should be such that one-half of its own width will separate it from the next star. Flags may be made in all sizes, but the above proportions should be preserved.—Philadelphia Press.

Cat Exchange In Paris.

Paris has a cat exchange, a "bourse aux chats." This establishment is situated in a big chamber at the rear of a wineshop. There are legions of cats of all sizes and colors, which are to be seen jumping and heard "miaulant." It is said that the customers are by no means tender hearted old ladies, but for the most part furriers, glovemakers and cooks. A good stock "matou" realizes from 2½ cents to 20 cents. The skin has a number of usages, and the flesh, according to the story, finds its way into the stewpans of certain restaurants possessing more enterprise than scruple.—Chicago Journal.

Two of a Kind.

Mrs. Boggs—I hate to have a man always complaining about some little thing. Now, my husband is continually harping on the lace curtains. Mrs. Woggs—Yes, and my husband has been kicking on our front door every morning at 8 o'clock for the past twenty years.—Puck.

Kept Him Busy.

"You haven't had time to make any friends? Then you have lived in vain." "Not on your life. I've managed to make some lively enemies."—Cleveland Leader.

A Hard Job.

Willie—Papa, there's a big black bug on the ceiling. Papa (busy reading)—Well, step on it and don't bother me.—Boston Transcript.

To make laws complete they should reward as well as punish.—Goldsmith.

On a dark night no warship would be safe from torpedo attack but for the searchlight. The full moon lights up a torpedo boat so that it can be fired at when nearly a mile away. To produce the same illumination with the most powerful artificial light an electric arc of 160,000 candle power placed three-quarters of a mile high would be needed if the aid of mirrors were not available. But with this light and an ingenious arrangement of mirrors it is possible to surpass the moon. Searchlights are now made which throw light a distance of sixty-three miles, but objects can be seen only a few miles from the source of the light. The effect on the enemy is most demoralizing. When the bright beam is suddenly thrown on the eye the pupil contracts violently; when the beam is removed the eye can see nothing. If this be repeated a few times it takes all the nerve out of a man, so that only the best trained and most courageous can continue the attack.—London Answers.

A Disappointing Witness.

Deacon Stephen Potter, one of the pioneers of Utica, N. Y., was a man of great eccentricity, but high moral character. "The deacon will speak the truth and shame the devil," was often said of him.

On one occasion a friend was engaged in a lawsuit in regard to some land a few miles from Utica. He held the land at a high price. During the trial he called Deacon Potter as a witness to prove how valuable the land was. The deacon was sworn and asked if he knew the land.

"Yes," he replied, "I know every foot of it."

"What do you think it worth, Mr. Potter?" was the next question.

The old man paused a moment and then said slowly, "If I had as many dollars—as my yoke of oxen—could draw—on a sled—on glaze ice—I vow—I would not give—a dollar an acre for it!"—Youth's Companion.

Flag Proportions.

In the United States flag the width of a stripe is invariably half the length in inches of the flag's longest measurement. For example, in a flag ten feet long the stripes should be five inches wide. Accordingly the flag would have a width of five feet five inches, or thirteen times five inches. The field should be of navy blue bunting measuring seven stripes deep and extending two-fifths across the length of the flag. There should be forty-six stars on the field, arranged in six rows, beginning with eight, the two middle rows having eight and the last row eight and the other rows seven. The size of the star at its widest measurement should be such that one-half of its own width will separate it from the next star. Flags may be made in all sizes, but the above proportions should be preserved.—Philadelphia Press.

Cat Exchange In Paris.

Paris has a cat exchange, a "bourse aux chats." This establishment is situated in a big chamber at the rear of a wineshop. Here are legions of cats of all sizes and colors, which are to be seen jumping and heard "miaulant." It is said that the customers are by no means tender hearted old ladies, but for the most part furriers, glovemakers and cooks. A good sleek "matou" realizes from 2½ cents to 20 cents. The skin has a number of usages, and the flesh, according to the story, finds its way into the stewpans of certain restaurants possessing more enterprise than scruple.—Chicago Journal.

Two of a Kind.

Mrs. Boggs—I hate to have a man always complaining about some little thing. Now, my husband is continually harping on the lace curtains. Mrs. Woggs—Yes, and my husband has been kicking on our front door every morning at 8 o'clock for the past twenty years.—Puck.

Kept Him Busy.

"You haven't had time to make any friends? Then you have lived in vain."

"Not on your life. I've managed to make some bully enemies."—Cleveland Leader.

A Hard Job.

Willie—Papa, there's a big black bug on the ceiling. Papa (busy reading)—Well, step on it and don't bother me.—Boston Transcript.

To make laws complete they should reward as well as punish.—Goldsmith.
